Subject: Loading Zone on S. Illinois Ave.

Hello Marina and team,

I am writing because there is a loading zone that covers the entire rental property next door to the south of our home. Our neighbors had it put in a few years ago when one of them almost slipped on ice. Since this loading zone has been installed, it has been a major inconvenience to everyone on the street, including pregnant women, families with children and the other renters on the top floor of the property.

I recently got a ticket for parking "in" the loading zone because the neighbors who installed it called the city. I was in fact parked in front of my house with maybe a few inches of my bumper past the pole for the loading zone. In no way was my parking spot impeding any car or truck from using the loading zone. The neighbors who installed it have weaponized it as a way to antagonize neighbors. We've had visiting family from out of town receive tickets; unsuspecting people visiting sick neighbors, people trying to move into the upper of the duplex etc. It has gotten pretty out of control.

It and after a plough deposited slush and ice too heavy for me to shovel in front of our path to get to the street, I shoveled a different path to the car so I could safely get my 3 year old in and out of the car everyday without either of us slipping on ice. We do not have space for our cars in our garage and our garage door does not work so we need to park on the street. The day I got my ticket I was heading to the doctor and saw the parking enforcer taking a picture of my car—she let me know the neighbors called in a complaint and that I should contest the ticket and contact the alderperson.

The reason this is so concerning to me specifically is because the neighbors who installed the zone pull up over the curb, onto the city sidewalk and park on their front lawn (of a rental property) almost daily to unload their car despite having the loading zone. They also continue to obstruct the sidewalk and not use the loading zone while having full access to their garage in back. They refused to allow the last tenants to share the double garage with them. The loading zone has created huge backups for all of our neighbors who use the street daily—in winter months when we only have one side to park on, the situation is exacerbated. So much so that there is often someone parked in front of our shoveled path, creating even more treacherous conditions for getting into our home in winter.

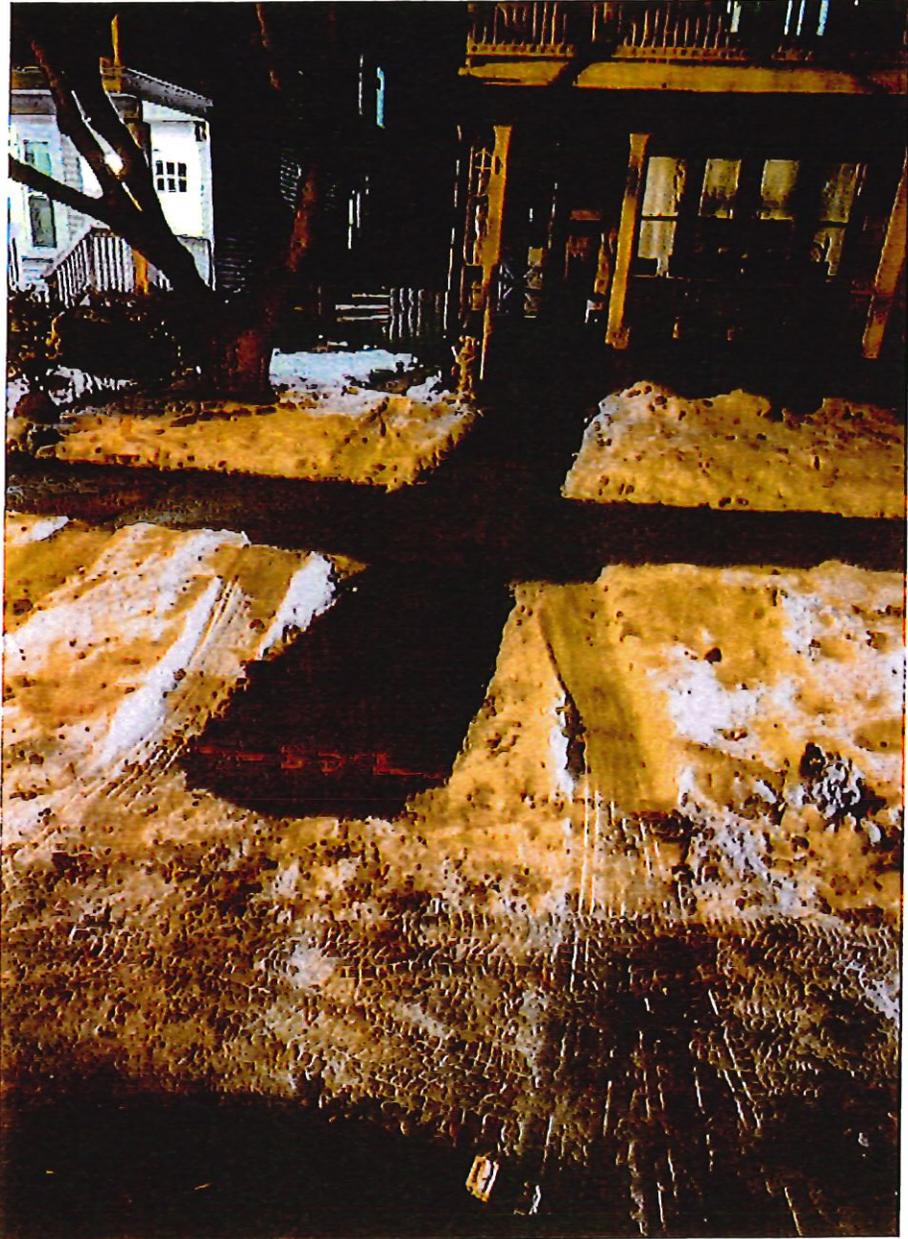

What can we do about this? I am all for people with certain needs having the opportunity to access their homes safely. But where do we draw the line here? At what point does it become a way to bully and bother neighbors if it is not being used for its intended purpose and is causing more harm than good? $40 anytime we are even close to the pole and parking that way to protect our own safety? This just feels illogical and inequitable to me—kind of the opposite of the intended purpose of applying for a loading zone to begin with.

Please let me know what, if anything, can be done. Once I have my baby in January, it is only going to be more difficult for me to access my car with unknowns like the weather, my husbands job (MFD), getting my other son to school daily etc.

Attached are pictures of their car pulled onto the sidewalk and front yard and tire tracks from the night after they called me in for the parking ticket.

Thank you in advance,
