During the 2016-17 school term, the operated eight schools. Four of the eight schools will come to the end of their current contract with city at the close of the school term in June of 2018.

In 2012, the CSRC formally adopted the scorecard to help the CSRC monitor each charter school's performance, based on each school's individual multiple measures of their students' academic progress as well as, their financial stability annually. However, due to the changes in the state assessment in the past 3 years, the scorecard is back in the pilot stage. These multiple measures include the following: Performance on standardize tests and local measures; Point-in-time academic achievement; Family and student engagement; Attendance; Student retention and return rates; and Teacher retention and return rates.
