Date built or altered: 1889

Builder/architect:

Builder: A. J. Sheben (or Shebeen or Shehen)

Written statement of significance: (continue on a separate sheet, if necessary)

Built in 1889 these buildings are similar in character to those included in the designation report for the North Point South designation report (jschle/word/study reports/northpoint south/10/07/02) This house is located in the Glidden and Lockwood's Addition as are the ones in the district across the street. Similar to the residential buildings across the street this one is a single family with brick and wood shingle siding and a gabled roof. The lot size and setback are also similar.

From the North Point South Historic District report: The district has remained exclusively residential in character and is boarded by Lake Michigan to the east, St. Mary's Hospital to the north and a mixed neighborhood of commercial, retail and apartments to the west and south. North Point South is built-up mostly with large, masonry, single family homes, but includes a number of duplexes on the side streets as well as former mansions that have been converted into multi-family dwellings.

Builder: A. J. Sheben (or Shebeen or Shehen)

I am requesting a temporary designation for this building in order to provide time to explore if the building should have been included in the original designation of the North Point South district, and if the North Point South district might now be expanded to include this and possibly other buildings on the west side of Summit Avenue as these residential buildings are very similar to the ones on the east side of Summit Avenue.

It seems likely that because some of the houses on the west are slightly more modest than the ones across the street that they may not have been included due to a bias toward designating larger houses and mansions. In fact, and importantly, these homes show the variation in residential buildings in the Glidden and Lockwood's Addition district and were built in the same era as the ones across the street.

Built in 1889 these buildings are similar in character to those included in the designation report for the North Point South designation report (jschle/word/study reports/northpoint south/10/07/02) This house is located in the Glidden and Lockwood's Addition as are the ones in the district across the street. Similar to the residential buildings across the street this one is a single family with brick and wood shingle siding and a gabled roof. The lot size and setback are also similar.

From the North Point South Historic District report: The district has remained exclusively residential in character and is bordered by Lake Michigan to the east, St. Mary's Hospital to the north and a mixed neighborhood of commercial, retail and apartments to the west and south. North Point South is built-up mostly with large, masonry, single family homes, but includes a number of duplexes on the side streets as well as former mansions that have been converted into multi-family dwellings.
