

Milwaukee named a "Cavity Capital"

By Kathy Haggan of the Journal Sentinel

Well, we're in the Top 10 of a national list but it bites.

Milwaukee is No. 8 among the Top 10 "most dentally challenged cities" according to Men's Health magazine. St. Louis ranks No. 1 on that list, which is based on community water fluoridation; the percentage of people who saw a dentist in the past year or have had their teeth extracted; the percentage of households using dental floss; money spent on oral hygiene products; and the number of dentist offices per capita.

You're not going to believe the cities with the brightest smiles. We have to think there might be David Letterman-sized gaps in the research.
