To Whom it May Concern:

When we speak of leaders and assets to our community, we think big right. Like Dr. Martin Luther King Jr or maybe Rosa Parks in that way? But we never would think that one woman was more than just a leader; she was an example of what giving and never receiving was. A role model with more than just great assets to give to her community, she gave values. This woman saved lives, gave families something to believe in and hope on being able to survive the next day. She gave children a playground to play on so that their parents would feel it was a safe environment and a great place to eat when hungry. She provided furniture for families who couldn't afford to buy furniture and provided food for families who couldn't afford food and most of all she installed in everyone she encountered love and no matter where life took them to they always remembered they had a home with her. This woman never asked for anything in return but to see her community happy. There was not one family in the Hopkins community and other communities that didn't have a holiday because she gave away on holidays to see her community smile. I'm speaking of Christmas-tree givings, Thanksgiving-turkeys drive, birthdays, she provided gifts, block parties you name it, she did it. Nothing mattered to her more other than her immediate family except her community which to her was her family as well. The person who always finds herself able to give everyone the blessings she receives and she supported everyone whether it was money or food. If she can help a person in need, she will make a way, everything she had she shared it with a passionate heart. She had a different way of taking care of her community. Her patience was as long as a road without an ending! Mother Corrine Miller, was a person that had a heart like God himself. She didn't care who you were and where you came from, she made you feel like you belonged. She has been in this community for over 70 year's or longer, handing out clothes, furniture, for adults and children and helping young women decorate their house with her donation. I can remember watching her wrapping Christmas gifts all night by herself to make sure the community families had a Christmas. When you describe Mother Corrine Miller, it's so much to say because her heart was gold. She was an altruistic woman and what I mean someone who always put others first no matter how tired she was and how sick she was, she always had her doors open to help others. So many families depended on Mother Corrine Miller, for love support, spiritual support, and just a listening ear. Now I know you may be wondering who I am referencing this letter about. A wonderful outstanding woman of tremendous courage, a woman of morals, a woman of Integrity, and a woman with a serving heart who has been the pillar of this community and kept it running all the way until her death on August 1,2021. A street name being honored after her isn't enough! For all she had done for that community, But naming the street after her, shows the spirit of gratitude, respect and honor for Mother Corrine Miller.

Sincerely yours

Brenda Miller
