Cases of Special Interest

- Kuper v. Kuper, 246 Wis.2d 987, 632 N.W.2d 123 (App. 2001) (unpublished) - decided that court is not required to honor a stipulation of the parties that violated the regulations of the IRS.
- Rehrauer v. City of Milwaukee, 2001 WI App 151, 246 Wis.2d 863, 631 N.W.2d 644 - held that city may not take away an employee's vested pension rights without the employee's specific written consent.
- Washington v. Washington, 2001 WI 47, 234 Wis.2d 684, 611 N.W.2d 261 - held that court has power to clarify terms of property division even after divorce is final.
- Fisher v. Transco Services, 979 F.2d 1239 (7th Cir. 1992) - held that use of work rules which had disparate adverse impact on older workers could be found to be pretext for age discrimination.
- United States v. Conley, 942 F.2d 1125 (7th Cir. 1991) - established that money and property transferred from older man to younger woman in course of a personal relationship between the two must be considered gifts and not taxable income to the recipient.

Sommerfield v. Sommerfield, 154 Wis.2d 840, 454 N.W.2d 55 (App. 1990) - confirmed that small business owned by one spouse cannot be valued at $0 for purposes of division of property at divorce merely because that spouse is unwilling to sell, but must be valued as if willing seller were involved.

Lins v. Smead, et. al., (Wis. App. 1987) (unpublished) - determined that subdivision's restrictive covenants on types of construction allowed could be enforced even though no enforcement committee had been functioning for several years beforehand.

Waukesha State Bank v. Sindic, 44 B.R. 167 (E.D.Wis. 1984) - indicated that secured creditor could not lose security interest in bankrupt's assets simply because bankrupt had legally disposed of stock-in-trade.

Day v. Good Samaritan Hospital, (Ohio App. 1983) (unpublished) - clarified that discharged employee could base wrongful discharge claim on promises implied from employee handbook.
