The Rolling Meadows Police Department could add two new community service officers to its ranks next year in lieu of another sworn officer, a change the police chief says will improve customer service.

The reorganization will cost the department $25,000 more. It's written into the 2004 budget, which will face a public hearing Nov. 25 at the city hall.

Community service officers do tasks that don't require the authority of a police officer - like waiting with a broken-down car for a tow truck to arrive or handling lock-outs ...
