

with Milwaukee-based WIRED Properties and the Barry Company. Rinka Chung Architecture is the project's designer.

The phased project is expected to begin in fall with construction of an eight-story office building that will be occupied by Michels Corp. Phase one is expected to be completed by summer 2020.

Tim Michels, vice president of Michels Corp., said initially about 400 employees will be located in about half of the building. He stressed that this will be a significant campus in Milwaukee, but Michels' headquarters will remain in Brownsville, which is in Dodge County.

The majority of the jobs will be newly-created, Michels said. Jobs will include construction, architecture and positions in human resources, marketing and the legal department. Michels is also hoping having a Milwaukee office will attract talent and engineers.

"The Michels Family is proud to make this historic investment to continue to grow Wisconsin's economy. The new campus will include 220,000 square feet of office space, a 100,000 sq ft hotel, and nearly 1,000 underground parking spaces.
