Antonia Drew Norton

My life is grounded in continuous personal and academic growth and expansion of knowledge. Born and raised in Milwaukee, WI, I seek to gain and share knowledge that builds on my vast experiences working directly with gender-based violence survivors and harm doers in the community and within prison systems. I prioritize building strong relationships for the continuation of community engagement activities with a real world focus. I continue a passion and purpose to teach and learn new ways to end violence in the lives of women, families and within community.

Experience

Executive Director/CEO and Founder Asha Family Services, Inc. now called The Asha Project.

February 1988- present

Antonia Drew Norton is widely known in the violence against women (VAWA) field as Antonia Drew Vann. She is the founder and Executive Director of Asha Family Services, Inc., (Asha) now called The Asha Project. Asha was established in 1988 in Milwaukee and is the State of Wisconsin's first culturally responsive African American women victim services for survivors of gender-based violence. Annually populations Asha serves are typically 75% African American, 20% White and 5% Native and Hispanic. Antonia has worked directly with thousands of survivors of domestic violence (DV), intimate partner violence (IPV) sexual assault (SA), and sex trafficking (ST) that continues today. Nationally, Asha is recognized as one of the first culturally responsive, evidence-based GBV victim serving programs in the United States and is the first in Wisconsin. Guided by an extensive network of academic colleagues and friends and more so by the authentic voices and needs of survivors to thrive. Simultaneously, she also worked directly with incarcerated men co-facilitating education groups. Antonia developed a wide range of comprehensive services over 3 decades. To name a few include a job-training site “Sistahs’ Café & Deli” (See PBS feature https://youtu.be/4-b_ha6m_oE?si=cflkBVBPEOmeQx9Z) and private housing programs and support services for survivors with up to 30 individual housing units for transitional housing supported by funding from the Department of Justice Office on Violence Against Women (OVW); and with HUD funding for Transitional Housing (TH) and Rapid Re-Housing (RRH) for survivors of gender-based violence and their children in the Milwaukee community. She also secured contracts with the State of Wisconsin Department of Corrections (DOC) to support housing for post-incarcerated victims transitioning back into the community. See Asha website: www.ashafamilyservices.org. With other advocates in the field, she conducted and participated extensively in national and local advocacy efforts for well over 3 decades to assist in changing policy and practice in the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) field including DOJ/OVW/OCVS and U.S. Department of Health and Human Services/ACF Family Violence (FVPSA) fields as well as significant efforts to assure the establishment of culturally specific funding and services for culturally specific groups. For many years, she is a sought after keynote speaker or workshop facilitator for an extensive number of agencies and Universities across the United States. Notable, Antonia has received multiple White House invitations, to recognize her work in the field by three U.S. Presidents (Clinton, Bush, Obama). Most recently (2024) she was invited to the White House to participate in the 30th Anniversary of VAWA.

Professionals Aspire, LLC (Consulting and Course)

Founder/CEO of Professionals Aspire LLC. (PALLC) offers consulting/speaking/workshop engagements and an amazing course. PALLC course uses learner centered teaching methods to assist professionals in gaining efficacy in better understanding and working with victims and survivors of gender-based violence and abuse.

Antonia developed the course “Helping Professionals: Working with Survivors of Gender-Based Violence” that is offered as an 8 week (4 Module course) or 16 week (8 Module course) program. The course is designed to develop and build confidence in helping professionals to be better prepared to offer meaningful support to survivors of GBV and particularly those who are African American women.

Mentorship and Advising

Antonia is viewed as a pioneer in the gender-based violence field and VAWA. She has an extensive network both locally and federally. With her mentees and those she is advising, she imparts relevant experiential wisdom gained in the work and demonstrates a positive attitude, empathy, patience, adaptability and conflict resolution. She profoundly understands the career development process in this work for new programs and for rising victim serving advocates. She has trained, supervised and mentored hundreds of victim serving advocates and other related professionals over the course of their careers. She educates and trains equipping mentees with information to empower themselves. She has mentored advocates across the United States and is intentional and assesses for what information she calls, “Pouring into them to see them take that to the next levels”. She continues involvement in advising locally and nationally providing critical guidance, encouragement and support to rising advocates on their careers and life goals.

Field Placement Supervision – Most recent (2023-2024), Antonia supervised several UW-Milwaukee Field Placement Fellows enlisting them on Special Projects to inform domestic and sexual violence victim services at Asha.

Faith Alice Mhone, RN (UWM School of Nursing) – Integrating Mental Health Support into Domestic Violence Intervention Programs: A Framework for Comprehensive Care.

Daniel Monge, MS (UWM Institute For Systems Change and Peace Building) - Data collection and analysis on domestic and intimate partner homicides in Milwaukee for 2022, 2023 and as of May 2024.

Silvia Gelvez – (UWM Institute For Systems Change and Peace Building) – Compiling DV/IPV victim data and images of domestic and intimate partner homicide victims in Milwaukee County for 2022 and 2023. Final product titled 57 Souls.

Study involvements (Current):

*National Institute of Health (NIH) study. Sisters by Choice: United by Voice. Antonia has worked closely with the PI and researchers on this NIH study from March 2022 to current day. University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (UWM).

Citation for study: Impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on help-seeking of American Indian and Black women experiencing intimate partner violence (The sisters by choice united by voice study) (R01MD016388):

SOS Study. Antonia has argued for many years that men's roles are critical in the fight to end domestic (DV) and intimate partner violence (IPV). In response to significant spikes in DV/IPV incidents and related homicides exacerbated by the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic, she envisioned a study with the focus of prevention - looking at non-carceral ways to reach men in the community who may be struggling with childhood and adult trauma histories and may be involvement in intimate partner and community violence. She secured foundation funding to explore this argument. She contracted with content expert William Oliver, Ph.D. (PI) University of Indiana to lead the design and conduct the study that was released in October 2023. This very successful project titled Saving Our Sisters and Saving Ourselves (SOS) utilizes the universal distress signal SOS. It has two key components. Focus groups were conducted with men in Milwaukee's inner-city neighborhoods experiencing the highest rates of fatal and non-fatal incidents along with a public awareness campaign that is culturally responsive to African American males. Using credible messengers, the campaign efforts sought to de-stigmatize help seeking and alert them and the community to community-based services and resources for men who may be struggling with depression, anger, and anxiety in relationships as well as a history of trauma. The study focuses on reducing domestic and intimate partner violence and related homicides and other community violence activity.

Special Projects

Course Development – 2022. In her master's program at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville, Antonia researched and developed an 8 or 16 week course titled Emerging Helping Professionals: Working with victims of gender-based violence (GBV). This unique course employing Learner Centered Teaching practices is developed to enhance the understanding, skills, and approach of professionals across disciplines (victim advocates, case managers, teachers, law enforcement, clinicians, clergy, activists, social workers, W2 workers, health care providers, etc.) whose work requires them to engage with or provide services to victims of gender-based violence (GBV) that includes a focus on African American women survivors. Such a course has become necessary. Given the heightened level of stress, anxiety, depression, and economic insecurity significantly experienced by lower income families in communities of color and now worsened by the effects of the COVID 19 pandemic. These factors surely impact children and youth exposed to DV/IPV who will be among the next generation of individuals involved in intimate partner relations. Considerable data indicates there is a direct correlation between youth's exposure to DV/IPV and community violent crime. Wyrick, et. al (2021) assert there is a direct relationship between childhood trauma and later involvement in the criminal legal system.

Prison work – 1992 to 2019. Antonia along with her staff, conducted support and education groups with women and men incarcerated in Wisconsin prisons. MEN: Conducted near monthly in-custody education groups for over 20 years with men incarcerated at Kettle Moraine Correctional Institution, Green Bay Correctional Institution, Waupun Correctional Institution, Fox Lake Correctional Institution, Oshkosh Correctional Institution, Oakhill Correctional Institution.

WOMEN: Conducted bi-weekly groups with women incarcerated at John C. Burke Correctional Center, Robert E. Ellsworth Correctional Center, and Milwaukee Women's Correctional Center. Conducted women's (2 day) groups two times a year at Nebraska Correctional Center for Women (York) in the state of Nebraska for 7 years. Conducted many presentations and workshops with Wisconsin Department of Corrections personnel on working with African American populations and with incarcerated survivors.

We Are Here MKE – 2021 to current. WeAreHereMKE.org <https://weareheremke.org> Antonia/Asha is the lead agency coordinating the collective body of the 7 culturally responsive domestic violence and sexual assault victim serving programs in the city of Milwaukee to increase their visibility and expertise. It is widely known and documented for some time that many victims/survivors of domestic and sexualized violence from communities of color or those who identify as LGBTQ+ will not use mainstream programs or law enforcement for a variety of reasons including mistrust of systems. Through Antonia's advocacy, she secured over $800,500 with each program receiving $100,000 and also secured $150,000 to design and launch the We Are Here MKE awareness campaign in partnership with marketing firm Creative Marketing Resources-Ignite. This successful campaign served to elevate and amplify the visibility of the culturally responsive programs located in areas and communities they serve. The collective includes:

The Asha Project, currently an initiative with End Domestic Abuse WI and is transitioning back its own non-profit agency; Our Peaceful Home*, a project of the Milwaukee Muslim Women's Coalition; *UMOS Latina Resource Center; *The Hmong American Women's Association; *Diverse & Resilient's Room to Be Safe Anti-Violence Program; *HIR Wellness Institute for Native populations and MMIWG and *the Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health Center.

Grant development: As the sole grant writer for Asha Family Services, Inc. and The Asha Project, Antonia successfully secured over $60 million dollars in federal/state/foundation grants and contracts to support Asha operations, personnel and services. Grant/contract sources are vast; however, include the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), Department of Justice (DOJ), Office on Violence Against Women (OVW), Office on Women's Health, State of WI Wisconsin Department of Correction (DOC), State of WI/CDC, State of WI DCF, City of Milwaukee (CDBG), Milwaukee County Behavioral Health, Goodwill Industries, W2, OIC, Greater Milwaukee Foundation, United Way of Greater Milwaukee, Forest County Potawatomi Foundation to name a few.

Steering Committee Member/co-founder - Institute on Domestic Violence in the African American Community (IDVAAC) University of Minnesota 1993 - 2016

Antonia is one of three co-founding members of the National Institute on Domestic Violence in the African American (IDVAAC) and Steering Committee member. IDVAAC formed in 1993 to create a nation-wide community of scholars and practitioners to help bridge the gap between research and practice to address domestic violence disproportionately impacting African American communities across the U.S. IDVACC was established in 1993 and primarily supported by US Dept Health and Human Services (HHS, FYSB). HHS funds were used to support advocacy and education and to conduct research in African American communities in the U.S. to further scholarship. Notably, IDVAAC became a national expert on domestic violence among African Americans, a resource to communities and a strong presence in the field of domestic and intimate partner violence. IDVAAC's work include partnership with the U.S. Department of Justice Office on Violence Against Women and the Vera Institute of Justice in the Safe Return Initiative that explored challenges experienced by incarcerated men and those previously incarcerated who had involvement and challenges with anger expressions and at great risk for violent and abusive behaviors. Antonia/Asha's prior history of work with incarcerated men in Wisconsin prisons since 1988 was a natural fit. Antonia directly participated in numerous research projects in multiple cities across the country with IDVAAC researchers. IDVAAC research and advocacy work subsequently opened the door for the entrance and establishment of other national institutes. <http://idvaac.org/about-us/steering-committee/>
