A Milwaukee Sister City

Application for a Sister City Relationship

Submitted by

Milwaukee-Kragujevac Sister City Committee of the Saint Sava Serbian Orthodox Cathedral

Introduction

This application is presented to your honorable body for the purposes of establishing a sister city relationship between the City of Milwaukee, USA, and the City of Kragujevac, Serbia (pronounced: Kra-GU-yeh-vatz). By forging a formal sister city relationship, both cities can harness the power of collaboration to promote mutual understanding, economic growth, and tap into shared experiences and strengths to create meaningful connections that benefit residents and promote understanding between the two nations.

Milwaukee and Kragujevac share many commonalities, making them excellent candidates for a sister city partnership. Both cities have rich histories, a strong industrial base, and thriving cultural as well as educational environments. Milwaukee is renowned for its picturesque location on the shores of Lake Michigan and serves as a hub for innovation, manufacturing, and higher education. The spirit of Milwaukee's residents, characterized by their warmth and hospitality – steeped in the working-class tradition - would undoubtedly provide a welcoming environment for visitors from Kragujevac. Similarly, Kragujevac stands as an important economic and cultural center in Serbia with a rich heritage and a progressive vision for the future. It boasts a diverse industrial sector, renowned educational institutions, and a wealth of cultural and historical landmarks. Kragujevac's commitment to preserving its cultural heritage while embracing innovation aligns closely with Milwaukee's own values and aspirations.

Cultural, economic, and educational exchanges are one of the most powerful tools for building bridges and fostering global harmony. Through a sister city partnership, the citizens of Milwaukee and Kragujevac will engage in reciprocal initiatives that have the potential to promote economic growth, improve educational opportunities and encourage cross-cultural understanding and appreciation among the residents. By leveraging the two cities' complementary strengths, we can explore avenues for business partnerships, trade missions, and ultimately bolster economic growth and job creation in both cities. The exchange of students, educators, and researchers will foster academic cooperation, facilitate the sharing of knowledge and best practices, and broaden the horizons of our respective educational institutions.

We firmly believe that a sister city partnership between Milwaukee and Kragujevac would not only strengthen the bonds between the two cities but also contribute to the broader goals of international cooperation, diplomacy, and global understanding. The City of Milwaukee and the City of Kragujevac have the potential to develop a vibrant and fruitful sister city relationship. The commitment to fostering cultural understanding, strengthening economic ties, and promoting educational exchanges aligns with the core values that underpin such partnerships.

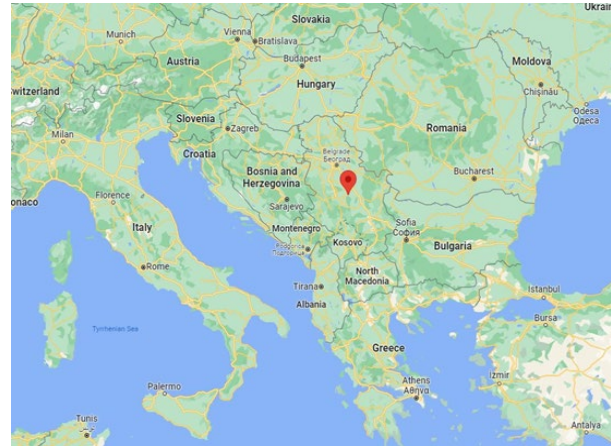

The Milwaukee-Kragujevac Sister City initiative has not only sparked great interest among members of Milwaukee's Serbian community, but has also attracted broad interest throughout the United States. We have been approached by many individuals expressing their interest and support for this initiative.

Thank you for your consideration, and we hope that you will join us in this vision by approving this application.

Information About the Sister City:

Demographics - Kragujevac's population is 171,186, according to the 2022 census. Around 70% are of working age (aged 15 to 64). The employed population in 2014 was 42,148 (47% of whom were women), most of whom work in metalworking (22%) and medical and social services (13%). About 54% of persons older than 15 have only secondary education, while 17.7% hold a college or university degree.

Geographic description - Kragujevac is located in the Southeastern European country of Serbia and sits on the Lepenica River, which is a tributary of the Morava River. It is the fourth largest city in Serbia and the administrative center of the Sumadija region. The city covers an area of 322 square miles, surrounded by the slopes of the Rudnik, Crni Vrh, and Gledić mountains. Kragujevac is the traditional center of Sumadija, a region characterized by its rolling hills and fertile orchards.

Historical background - The history of Kragujevac dates back to 1476 when a settlement called “Kraguj” was mentioned in an Ottoman census. The settlement was named “Kraguj” in honor of a type of eagle believed to live in the surrounding forest. Kragujevac was at the center of the uprising against the Ottoman rule in the early 19th century and became Serbia’s capital from 1818-1841. The country’s first constitution, considered one of the most liberal in Europe, was signed in Kragujevac.

During this period, the city experienced a cultural, economic and political awakening. The first Serbian high school was built in Kragujevac in 1838. The first newspaper in Serbia, “Novine Srbske,” rolled off the press in 1834. During this period, musical organizations such as Knjazevko – Srpska Banda delighted audiences, and Knjazevsko-Serpski Teatar, the oldest in Serbia, opened its doors.

Though Kragujevac ceased to be the capital in 1841, the city thrived as the young Balkan nation's industrial center. The first armament factory was built in 1850, and was soon followed by a telephone exchange and a railroad that connected Kragujevac to the new capital, Belgrade.

Kragujevac experienced great hardships during World War I and World War II. During World War II, the Nazis massacred almost 3,000 civilians on October 21, 1941 in retaliation for an attack against German soldiers. The victims are remembered in Kragujevac Memorial Park.

Today, Kragujevac is the fourth largest city in Serbia and a center of industry, producing cars, machinery, and textiles. Its thriving culture attracts tourists from all over the Balkans.

Governmental structure - Mayor Nikola Dasic leads the local government, which is a democratically elected assembly. The city assembly consists of 87 councilors who are elected by citizens in direct elections with votes cast by secret ballot, in accordance with the law. Decisions are made by the majority of votes of the councilors present, unless otherwise specified by law or the Statute.

Educational system - Education is an important part of the city landscape. Kragujevac has 22 primary and 8 secondary schools. The University of Kragujevac, which is the fourth largest in Serbia, was established in May 1976.

Today the University of Kragujevac is a modern education and research center embracing almost all major areas of teaching and research, with a student population of 18.000 and 1.200 academic staff.

Areas of Mutual Interest and Involvement Between the Sister Cities

Milwaukee and Kragujevac share several areas of mutual interest and involvement, particularly in the realms of culture and business. Culturally, both cities have a rich heritage and a strong commitment to preserving and promoting their local traditions. The two cities could explore opportunities for cultural exchange programs, art exhibitions, and performances that would foster a deeper understanding and appreciation of each other's unique cultural expressions. Additionally, both cities boast vibrant creative industries, providing potential for collaboration and cross-cultural ventures in the fields of film, music, and design.

From a business perspective, Milwaukee and Kragujevac can capitalize on each other's strengths and expertise. Milwaukee, known for its manufacturing prowess and innovative industries, could potentially benefit from exploring partnerships with Kragujevac. Conversely, Kragujevac could find valuable opportunities to expand its presence in the American market through potential joint ventures or export-import ventures with businesses in Milwaukee. Several large Milwaukee-area firms already have a presence in Kragujevac, including but not limited to Johnson Controls, Milwaukee Tool, Generac, and John Deere. There are also other medium and small sized firms doing business between the two cities as well.

The cities' respective chambers of commerce can play a crucial role in facilitating trade missions and business delegations between the two regions, fostering stronger economic ties. By leveraging each other's strengths and fostering a spirit of cooperation, the City of Milwaukee and the City of Kragujevac can create a mutually beneficial relationship that nurtures cultural understanding and drives economic growth for both communities.

Details of communication and consultation with the sister city regarding the existing relationship

Sister cities committees have been in constant communication about forging the relationship and establishing ties on a standing monthly basis as well as in the interim period as necessary. The matters discussed, besides logistical matters, involved the principal areas of exchange, including but not limited to economic, cultural, and educational cooperation..
