To Whom This May Concern,

I am an elderly 65 year old woman and was in the hospital when this happened. I was parked in front of the house where I always parked because I thought it was safe to do so. There weren't any barricades or no parking sign around or else I wouldn't have parked there. I understand the rear end of the car came away on the curved part of the street due to a water main break. The car was pulled out of the ditch dragging the back wheels up to the street level, then taken 3 or 4 houses down the street. While car was down there someone came along and put 2 bricks on the tires, being afraid it would be towed away as an abandoned car, my son brought it back in front of the house. On 4/29/02 8 in the morning someone placed a temporary no parking sign on the tree by the car.

5 hours later a parking violation - ticket was put on car began my son + daughter could push it onto the drive way. On 4/30 I had car towed to and from Anato Olds to get an estimate only to find out the damages exceeded the value of the car. I've been told the ditch breaks at least 2-3 times a year, so now instead of a black tar patch there is a big slab of concrete like the rest of the street. This happened the week of the 22nd when I went into the hospital.

Yours Truly
Annette Patton
