Major Federal Priorities

Provide More Direct Appropriations of Federal Funds to Local Governments

Urban areas are currently shortchanged by many state governments in the distribution of pass-through funds. We would like to see more federal resources targeted directly to local governments, thereby enabling the administration to work more closely with local leaders who share the President's priorities.

Continue and Increase Investment in Aging Infrastructure Replacement and Transportation Projects

Our nation's largest cities are the hubs of US economic activity. We are challenged by the age and replacement needs of our roads, sewers, and other infrastructure which are relied upon by the largest concentration of residents and businesses. Continued funding for programs like ARRA and TIGER grants will improve our ability to support their needs.

Continue Funding Current Grant and Direct Appropriation Programs to Cities

With the goal of deficit and spending reductions by many in Congress, it is important for the City to fight to maintain federal funding of over $150 million that the City currently receives each year from federal agencies. Milwaukee's residents depend on the vital services that these grants and programs support and it is important that Milwaukee continues to receive its fair share of federal resources.

Create a Nationwide Catalytic Economic Development Project Fund

Urban revitalization requires a targeted, multi-disciplinary approach to be most effective. Federal grant resources from multiple agencies should be pooled together to create a targeted vision for urban revitalization that will have a greater impact on communities. Milwaukee projects that could benefit from this approach include the 30th Street Industrial Corridor, the Lakefront Interchange, the Aerotropolis and the Port of Milwaukee's Foreign Trade Zone.

Invest in the Fresh Coast Concept to Further Milwaukee's Up and Coming Status as a World Leader in Freshwater Science and Industry

Milwaukee has become a national leader in freshwater sciences and industry through our location on the Great Lakes, the concentration of freshwater related businesses, and the expansion of the UWM School of Freshwater Sciences. The City should actively pursue federal legislation and opportunities that will capitalize upon and increase our standing as a national hub for freshwater science and industry.

Increase Opportunities for International Trade at Milwaukee's Port and Expand International Connections with Urban Centers of Economic Activity

The International Trade Administration can help international companies connect with urban areas according to their market assets and strategic advantages. With the size and strategic location of the Port of Milwaukee and our freshwater resource capacity, the City is in a unique position to capitalize upon efforts at the federal level to expand international trade and business location in industries that can benefit from our assets.

Federal Priorities - United States Congress

Fiscal Stability

- Protect the tax exempt status of municipal bonds
- Create a two year window for the return of tax-exempt pension obligation borrowing for state and local government pension plans
