Following my previous correspondence and an automated out-of-office notification, I am writing to provide additional concerns regarding the proposed Midtown data center.

Recent reporting, including an article in Newsweek, highlights a trend where data center developments are pursued with minimal community engagement. Furthermore, I am concerned about the significant strain such facilities place on local power resources. Given that Midtown is a densely populated residential area home to thousands of families, this type of development is inappropriate for our neighborhood.

I am absolutely opposed to this project and urge you to prioritize the interests of the local community.

Sincerely,

Barbara Boyd

I am writing to formally express my strong opposition to the proposed data center development in the Midtown area, specifically regarding its proximity to where I live.

While I agree that development in Midtown is necessary, a data center is not an appropriate solution for this location. There has been no information provided regarding how this project will benefit our neighborhood, and the lack of transparency suggests that the development may not serve the community's best interests. Furthermore, there is a concerning lack of data regarding the long-term environmental impact these centers may have on the immediate area.

I urge you to reconsider this proposal in favor of developments that offer clear benefits to the residents.

Sincerely,

Barbara Boyd
