The main conference poster features a large American flag in the background. In the foreground, several people in business attire are shown from the chest up, holding the flag. The text "2006 Annual City Conference" is prominently displayed in the center. To the right, there is a logo consisting of three stylized city buildings. Below the logo, it says "National League of Cities". At the bottom, it provides the location and dates: "Hilton Washington Hotel and Towers - Washington, DC - March 11-15, 2006". There is also a small icon of the U.S. Capitol building.

2006 Congressional City Conference

Lobbying for America's Cities

A United Voice for Cities and Towns

In 2006, the 109th Congress and the President will focus on a range of issues that matter to America's cities, villages, and towns.

From telecommunications tax reform to emergency preparedness and response, from federal tax reform to funding for affordable housing, from protecting local programs in the federal budget process to managing rising health care costs, city and town leaders need to be well informed and well positioned to ensure the best outcomes for their communities on critical issues.

The National League of Cities provides the resources, the connections, and the collective power to help city leaders have an impact on Capitol Hill.

And, the 2006 National League of Cities Congressional City Conference, March 11-15, 2006, in Washington, DC, offers the best opportunity to learn about the issues, present a strong and unified municipal voice in Congress, develop and strengthen relationships with members of Congress, and advocate local positions on key priorities.

A NEW Schedule to Maximize Connections

We've adjusted the conference schedule in 2006 to give city leaders more time to connect with their Congressional delegations.

Leadership meetings, policy discussions, and legislative briefings will begin on Sunday, March 12, with general sessions and workshops scheduled on Monday, March 13, and Tuesday March 14. City Lobby Day will be held on Wednesday, March 15. The schedule offers two full days when members of Congress will be in Washington to connect with city officials both in general sessions at the hotel and in meetings on Capitol Hill.

Leadership Training Institute Seminars – which provide value-added skill development opportunities when you come to Washington to work on federal advocacy issues – will be offered on Saturday, March 11, and Sunday, March 12.

Come to Washington, DC, March 11-15, 2006, to educate and advocate on behalf of the 225 million people we collectively represent. The strength of the National League of Cities, as the voice in Congress for cities, villages, and towns throughout this country, depends on thousands of local officials – including each of you – coming together to speak with a loud, clear, and unified voice on a shared set of priorities.

There is a lot at stake for cities and towns in the 109th Congress. Join with your colleagues to demand a renewed federal-local partnership to address the issues critical to cities and towns across America.

Schedule!

The Action Plan

Sunday, March 12

City officials gather at the Hilton Washington and Towers for leadership meetings, policy discussions, and legislative briefings to learn about current federal issues and priorities for America's cities and towns.

Monday, March 13

NLC's leaders and general session speakers set the stage for the action to come by outlining the opportunities and challenges and building capacity to make a difference on key federal issues.

Tuesday, March 14

President Bush and Congressional and administrative leaders are invited to discuss their priorities and reactions to the National League of Cities agenda. The program will wrap up with a closing general session to review the agenda and confirm plans for City Lobby Day.

Wednesday, March 15 – City Lobby Day

Busen take all conference delegates to the Capitol for strategic meetings with Congressional leaders to talk about NLC's priorities for federal action and expectations of Congress and the Administration.

Be part of the national voice of America's cities and towns in 2006.

2006 Congressional City Conference

Key ISSUES

The 2006 Congressional City Conference will feature general sessions, workshops, and strategy meetings built around NLC's lobbying priorities for the second session of the 109th Congress. Key issues likely to be on federal agenda in 2006 include:

Local Government Franchise Authority

Local governments' authority to grant franchises for the delivery of video programming is under attack at both the state and federal levels. At stake is the fundamental authority to manage and collect franchise fees for use of local rights of way. City officials must be prepared to refute industry arguments that local franchising impedes competition and to make the case for local management of municipal rights of way.

Federal Tax Reform

The President's Advisory Panel on Federal Tax Reform included in its recommendations the elimination of the deduction for state and local property, income, and sales taxes. If enacted, this would impose a federally mandated double taxation on taxpayers in cities and towns throughout the country. Congress is likely to address this and other tax reform proposals during the coming year, and city leaders need to be prepared to protect local revenue in that process.

Eminent Domain for Economic Development

Both Congress and many state legislatures are considering legislative proposals to constrain local governments' use of eminent domain in the wake of the Supreme Court decision in the Kelo v. City of New London case. That decision affirmed that exercising eminent domain for economic development is a "public" use. Sessions will cover the latest developments on the federal and state levels and strategies for managing this politically charged issue.

Spectrum for Public Safety

Local recovery efforts during Hurricane Katrina underscored the need for reliable, interoperable communication systems for local emergency response. Congress is addressing proposals to set a specific date for the release of broadcast spectrum that can be designated exclusively for public safety purposes and to authorize funding for interoperable public safety communications equipment.

Community Development and Affordable Housing

Despite NLC's success in preserving the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program in the Department of Housing and Urban Development and securing increased funding for Section 8 Housing Vouchers this year, these programs will face continued challenges in the next federal budget. The Administration will continue to push its Strengthening America's Communities Initiative to combine, cut, and move CDBG, and to reform the Section 8 program to contain its increasing costs.

The Fiscal Year 2007 Federal Budget

The next federal budget will face intense pressure including the cost of rebuilding communities devastated by recent hurricanes, continued support for the war in Iraq, the cost of implementing the President's proposed tax cuts and Social Security reform, and achieving the President's promised deficit reduction goals. This means that federal programs important to cities and towns including CDBG, housing, public safety, homeland security, and education could be under attack in the budget process.

Telecommunications Tax Reform

The migration of telecommunications services to a non-taxed, Internet platform will continue to shrink traditional sources of revenue for cities and towns across the country and lead to inequitable tax treatment of telecommunications services based on the delivery technology rather than the service provided. At the same time, telecommunications companies argue that taxes on telecommunications services are too high and that the collection and administration of local telecommunications taxes must be streamlined and centralized at the state level. As a result, pressure for reform of telecommunications taxes is increasing on both the federal and state levels.

Health Care Reform

The rising cost of providing health care benefits to employees has had a dramatic impact on municipal budgets. Recommendations by an NLC Health Care Task Force to address the cost of health care will be the basis for increased federal advocacy for health care reforms in the coming year.

Educational Reform

The No Child Left Behind Act is scheduled to be reauthorized next year. An NLC Task Force has developed a set of recommendations for reforming the Act to close the gap between its requirements and feasible implementation. City officials - many of whom are blamed when schools fail - must be prepared to advocate for needed reforms and for the funding required to meet Act's requirements.

Visit the NLC website at www.nlc.org for regular updates on key issues and advocacy priorities.
