What is the
DAD Project?

The DAD Project is a free, voluntary program that provides home visits to fathers, families, and children.

The DAD Project uses the evidence-based Parents as Teachers home visiting model and curriculum as well as the National Fatherhood Initiative's 24/7 Dad curriculum.

What will you gain through the
DAD Project?

What does the
DAD Project
have to offer?

- A caring, culturally sensitive home visitor
- Personal visits to you, in your home
- Support to help you achieve goals that are important to you
- Tools and resources to help strengthen parenting, relationship, and communication skills
- Health information to help you understand your health as well as your child's and partner's health
- Information that will help you respond to your infant/child's needs
- Child development information, resources, and activities
- Connections to community resources including employment, education, and legal services

- You will have an advocate for you and your family.
- You will understand how to support your child's health and development and to help him/her get ready for school.
- You will build a lasting relationship with your home visitor.
- You will learn how to identify support and access resources in your community.

Who can enroll in the
DAD Project?

- Dads who are expecting a baby
- Dads with children ages 0–12 months

DAD Project participants must live in the city of Milwaukee.
