Hi Deb,

We don't generally approve internally lit box signs. The letters have to project somehow and the background cannot be lit. Push through letters or halo-lit surface mounted letters would solve the problem. And again, the box itself cannot be translucent if there are lights inside of it.

Size and form are ok, with our usual caveat that mounting must drill only into mortar joints and not into the brick.

Dear Historic Preservation –

Here you will find our application for a COA for a new sign in the Brady Street District.
This is all I have for now.
Let us know if you need anything further from us for this review.
I look forward to hearing from you.
