

Local News

City leaders file lawsuit against 'Bird Scooters'

By:

WKRN Web Staff (<https://www.wkrn.com/meet-the-team/wkrn-web-staff/1080165394>)

✉ (<mailto:webmail@wkrn.com>)

Updated: Jun 06, 2018 06:55 PM CDT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (WKRN) - Nashville city leaders have filed a lawsuit against "Bird Scooters".

The filing comes after two women were hit by a car while riding the electric scooters in downtown Nashville last month.

Now, Metro is calling on the company to no longer allow users to park the scooters on the metro sidewalks.

The complaint by the city is requesting the company pay a fine every time a scooter is found on a city sidewalk.

Metro Council is also considering new regulations for the electric scooters.

More local news

- THP: 1 killed in Dickson County crash
- Police: Man robbed in Nashville following dating app meetup
- Man accused of attempting to run over Antioch family, assault father
- Suspect in East Nashville murder arrested
- Drowning victim recovered from Percy Priest Lake in Smyrna

Copyright 2018 Nexstar Broadcasting, Inc. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten, or redistributed.
