I have previously appraised similar artwork by similar artists in these same markets, and, as a certified appraiser with the Appraisers Association of America am well-qualified to do so.

The objective of this report is to provide an inventory by location, a general condition assessment and recommendations for conservation, as well as an unbiased retail replacement value for insurance purposes. I have no bias with respect to the parties involved with this assignment.

I have no past, present or contemplated future financial or other interest in the appraised property.

Scope of Work

Problem to Solve: I was asked to prepare an Appraisal Report for six-hundred sixty five (665) works of fine art and decorative arts to establish an inventory by location, a condition assessment with recommendations for conservation, and retail replacement values for insurance purposes and client information. This Appraisal Report is not intended for any other purpose or for any other person or entity other than those listed below.

Category of Items Examined: Fine Art and Decorative Arts (including stained glass and furniture)

Client: City of Milwaukee and City of Milwaukee Arts Board

Owner: City of Milwaukee

Effective Valuation Date of Appraisal: The values expressed in this Appraisal Report are effective as of the examination date, August 27-31, 2018.

Use of Appraisal Report: Insurance and Client Information

User(s) of Appraisal Report: This Appraisal Report can be used and relied upon by the clients, a designated insurance company/agent/broker/underwriter, designated attorneys, designated accountants, and the client's managing employees. Any other user is considered an unintended user.

Authenticity: Although I am not an authenticator, I had no reason to doubt the authenticity of the work except as noted.

Appraiser's Past Exposure to Appraised Objects: This is my initial association with the objects included within this appraisal report, as an appraiser or in any other capacity.

General Assignment Conditions and Method of Examination: This appraisal is based on a physical inspection of the listed property (excluding approximately 9 lots which were evaluated from photographs provided by a contract appraisal assistant, due to geographic constraints, and 213 lots which were not found). I was able to ascertain medium, style, and quality of the works from personal examination, photographs taken at the inspection, the City of Milwaukee's existing documentation, and personal research. I measured the works (height precedes width unless otherwise stated) and determined their condition. Condition is based on my observations unless otherwise noted. I took photographs of the works including details. No modifications or alterations were made to the photographs, except sizing and cropping. In most instances, the photographs are an accurate representation of the objects. (Some photos contain distracting or distorting reflections due to the fact that the photos were taken in an office or other interior setting with light from windows bouncing off of glass or Plexiglass coverings. Some photos had to be taken at an angle due to the proximity at which they were viewed and installed in the buildings.)

General Condition of Items: No formal condition report was supplied by the client for the articles. As such, I assigned each work a general condition comment – good, fair or poor with description qualifications, when needed. Variations of these terms may also be incorporated in the condition statements, i.e. “fair to good.” “Condition” refers to the physical state of the object. The following can be used as general definitions for the condition standards:

- “Good” is used when the work is unrestored with no apparent damage to the original condition or restored/conserved/stabilized with concern for preserving the integrity of the work.
- “Fair” is used when a work has been compromised through damage or restoration. It may be over-restored, lined, or retouched, but remains representative of the artist’s work or manufacturer’s intent.
- “Poor” is when a work has either been severely compromised through substantial damage or poor restoration or is in unstable condition.

Limiting Conditions: The following Limiting Conditions apply in this assignment. These conditions limited the examination, research and/or writing of the Appraisal Report. (Approximately 9 lots, were evaluated from photographs provided by a contract appraisal assistant due to geographic constraints.) Many of the larger works of art were not taken down from the walls in their respective locations, and thus the versos were not inspected for signatures or labels. This was also the case with items that were installed high up on walls or inside of closed casework. However, it should be stated that for the majority of artwork where the verso was accessed and examined, there was little additional information found that would contribute to the assessment. There were no other limiting conditions to consider as part of the valuation.

Assumptions: This Appraisal Report is based on the following Assumptions: (The medium and artists of the six-hundred sixty five lots (665) of fine and decorative arts was assumed correct as represented, and other information provided by the client is assumed correct.)

Extraordinary Assumptions: As defined by USPAP, Extraordinary Assumptions are assignment specific assumptions as of the effective date regarding uncertain information used in the analysis, which, if found to be false, could alter my opinions or conclusions. The following Extraordinary Assumptions Apply: (There were no extraordinary assumptions to consider as part of the valuation.)

This Appraisal Report is based only on the readily apparent identity of the items appraised, and no further opinions or guarantee of authenticity, genuineness, attribution, or authorship is made. I found no reason to question the authenticity of the articles, except as noted. If the client provided verbal information regarding provenance of the articles listed herein, I am not responsible for the accuracy of this information.

Information furnished by consulting sources is assumed to be reliable.

To my knowledge, no laboratory testing has been performed on the subject property.

This Appraisal Report is not an indication or certificate of title ownership. The appraised value is based on whole ownership and possessory interest undiminished by any liens, fractional interests or any other form of encumbrance or alienation.

Hypothetical Conditions: Defined by USPAP as a condition directly related to this assignment which is contrary to what is known by the appraiser to exist on the effective date of the assignment results but is used for the purpose of analysis. The following Hypothetical Conditions exist in this assignment. (There were no hypothetical conditions to consider as part of the valuation.)

Research Methodology: My research was conducted at my office, Madison Group Fine Art Appraisals. The offices are equipped with an extensive library of research books and auction catalogues. Additional research was conducted on the Internet using standard search engines as well as pricing databases to which Madison Group Fine Art Appraisals subscribes (including artnet, artprice, artsy, askart, liveauctioneers, etc.) Galleries, private dealers and auction houses were contacted for information, when necessary. Specific sources and websites are listed at the end of the front-matter of the report.

Definition of Sales Comparison Approach and Market Examined: The Sales Comparison Approach¹ analyzes recent sales and prices of comparable articles at retail establishments, galleries, private sales as well as international, national and regional auctions where such objects are normally traded. For this particular Appraisal Report, I examined the following market(s), i.e. international, national and regional auctions and galleries. I then made adjustments for each article taking into consideration age, condition, rarity, artistic merit, technical workmanship, current trends and availability of an article as compared to such recent sales.

Type of Value Used: Retail Replacement Value.

Definition of value: Appraised "retail replacement value" is defined as the highest amount in terms of US dollars that would be required to replace a property with another of similar age, quality, origin, appearance, provenance, and condition within a reasonable length of time in an appropriate and relevant market. When applicable, sales and/or import tax, commissions and/or premiums are included in this amount.

Source for Definition of Retail Replacement Value: Appraising Art: The Definitive Guide to Appraising the Fine and Decorative Arts, 2013, Appraisers Association of America, page 438.

Approach to value: I considered the following approaches to value: Sales Comparison, Income and Cost. Given the items and the purpose of the assignment, I selected the Sales Comparison Approach to arrive at the Retail Replacement Value. The income Approach and the Cost Approach were considered and rejected as not applicable to this appraisal. The Income Approach was not considered appropriate because the items at present are not income-generating. The Cost Approach was not considered appropriate as there is no need to determine the value of the subject property based on the cost of manufacturing or recreating an identical object at this time.

USPAP Compliance: This Appraisal Report follows the guidelines of the 2018-2019 USPAP in that the report provides all of the necessary information/analysis to satisfy the current report development requirements as defined in Standard 7 (Personal Property, Development) and the writing requirements of a Appraisal Report as defined in Standard 8 (Personal Property, Reporting).

Market Analysis

Overview of the 2018 Market for Fine Art. Generally speaking, demand and interest in Modern and Contemporary fine art had risen dramatically over the past two-three decades. The demand for important, high quality pieces in all fine art categories had skyrocketed and prices had become difficult to predict. Just over 10 years ago, during late 2007 and early 2008 almost every major sale shattered previous records. Then, in mid-2008, things changed when the stock-market crashed and not only American, but global economic downturn set in. 2009 and 2010 proved to be unstable years overall, as the market mirrored the general economic situation in the U.S. and the world shifted away from purchasing luxury and non-essential goods. In 2011-2012 there was general instability and in 2012, the market began to take on its current state of polarization. There is increased demand and record prices being paid for the most high-quality examples of work by important artists, yet prices for lesser quality examples and artwork by relatively unknown or low-to-mid tier artists has decreased and remains low. Contemporary Art currently commands the lion's share of market activity and again is setting record-breaking prices at auction, even for works by living artists. In 2018, more and more individuals are entering the art market as prospective buyers and collectors, including a new and younger generation in their 30s or even late 20s. For this younger generation, in particular, on-line art-buying platforms are gaining a foothold (especially for work created in multiples such as prints, photographs, and sculpture). As we moved through the third quarter of 2018 and into the fourth, Contemporary art commands both the largest share of activity and some of the highest prices in the art market. Modernist, Impressionist, and work by European masters also command a fair share but only for those works of the highest quality.

Market Note for the Collection of Fine and Decorative Art held by the City of Milwaukee. From a market perspective, the City of Milwaukee art collection is wide-ranging and eclectic; which is not surprising given that it represents both historic and contemporary art. The primary retail market in America and in the Midwest is the most active and relevant market to find replacements for the majority of the work within the City of Milwaukee's collection. Auction sales were also considered for many artists who have little or no secondary market activity. Living artists were also consulted whenever possible. When no exact comparables were found, items were valued in the general marketplace.

Historic works such as maps and photographs concentrating on Milwaukee and Milwaukee civic buildings and areas such as City Hall and the Courthouse.

Also included is a collection of stained glass and several items of furniture. Stained glass comparable sales:

Grapevine design stained glass window with unleaded glass, oak, 20th century American, 40 x 26" T. & Co., Oakpark Illinois, September 16, 2018, Lot #330, estimated for $600 - $800; sold for $750

Impressive stained & blown glass panel, 65" diameter, mid-late 20th century, architectural example featuring six individual stained glass panels with blown glass medallions over sculpted chunk glass, housed in a wheel-style hardwood frame, Great Gatsby's, Atlanta, Georgia, August 25, 2018, lot #715; estimated $1,800 - $2,500; sold for $1,500

19th C. Stained Glass Panels, set of 3, 19 x 69" each with metal housings; Copake Auction, Inc., Copake,

New York, July 28, 2018, Lot #442, estimated $200-$300; sold for $400

Self-taught artists who have little or no current market activity, yet their works remain significant to the City of Milwaukee in terms of its history and culture, and document important places and moments in time. A good example is James Alvin Jr. (1935-2011). Alvin studied painting for six months under a federal government program during the 1980s, but was otherwise self-taught. He is recognized to have bridged a gap between poetry, music, and the visual arts especially in the Milwaukee African-American culture and community.

Artists who have spent most of their professional career in and around Milwaukee and who have made contributions to the community beyond their artwork including important teaching positions. Their markets are (generally speaking) active in the primary retail market but they have not established any secondary market activity, which is not an unusual situation. A good example is Muneer Bahauddeen (b. 1948). An active producer of ceramics, prints, sculpture, and murals, Bahauddeen studied in Chicago and later taught at a variety of Milwaukee and Wisconsin based art schools. Gerald Duane Coleman is another example of an artist who also made strong contributions to the Milwaukee community including its network of public libraries.

Artists with strong Milwaukee ties who have active secondary markets. In these instances both the retail markets (brick and mortar galleries) and auction were consulted with an emphasis on retail which is generally on the higher end. Examples of this category include Morley Hicks, Edwin Knutesen, Gustave Moeller, Karl Priebe, Howard Schroedter, and Garrit Sinclair.

Artists with strong Milwaukee ties who have little market activity. These were researched and valued in comparison to similar works in the general marketplace. Examples of these artists include Thorsten Harold Frederick Lindberg and Norine Sexton.

Artists with strong historical and/or lifetime ties to Germany which would include Paul S. Donhauser, Hans John Stoltenberg, Albert Otto Tiemann, and Carl von Maar.

The Collection also contains a fair number of portraits of City dignitaries and Mayors throughout the many years of its history. These tend to have been executed not by famous named artists but by trained portrait painters who generally have little or no active markets. These portraits were valued in the general marketplace and when the painter could be identified, that was taken into consideration. Most were valued in the $2,000 - $2,500 range unless a specific reason deemed the work should be higher.

Many active and working artists are included within the Collection and these artists tended to set their own pricing structures either by selling directly to the consumer or going through a retail gallery setting. Whenever possible these artists were contacted directly to ascertain current retail replacement values. Examples include Richard Bronk, Daniel Eddee, Patricia Hidson, Mark Iwinski, Richard Judd, Ruth Kjaer, Tom Queoff, and others.
