Dear Dr. Kebeney,

As we budgeted for drilling the borehole at Sigowet we anticipated drilling to a depth of approximately 60 meters, as we have with the previous boreholes we have drilled in other parts of Kenya. In this instance we had to drill to a depth of 180 meters to obtain a sustainable water supply. As a result we have exhausted the funds available for this project and are not able to complete the project with a pump and other finishes.

It is our hope that the local team will be able to find other sources that will be able to take what has been done and move it to completion so that the good people of this area will have a reliable source of clean water.

A big thank you goes to the local team for their hard work to make this dream of clean water a reality.

Regards,

Larry Barnett
