

Memorandum No. 2020-XXX
XXXX, 2020

RE: Disciplinary Matrix

PURPOSE

This document identifies factors that will be considered in the disciplinary decision process for alleged breaches of the Code of Conduct. It is critical that a system of discipline be established that contributes to minimizing abuse of police authority and promotes the department's reputation for professionalism. Each department member must understand and be guided by the standards that have been established in this Code.

It is recognized and understood that department members will make judgmental errors from time to time in carrying out their responsibilities. While each error in judgment offers an opportunity for the department and the member to learn, it is also understood some errors will have greater consequences than others for the public, the department and the member.

The department has an obligation to make its expectations as clear as possible to its members. The department has an equal obligation to make the consequences for failing to meet those expectations clear. There are often circumstances that may have contributed to errors of judgment or poor decisions that need to be considered when determining the appropriate consequences for conduct found to be improper.

Disciplinary action must be imposed in a consistent and fair manner. Consistency is defined as holding everyone equally accountable for unacceptable conduct. Fairness is defined as understanding the circumstances that contributed to the conduct while applying the consequences in a way that reflects this understanding. In order to ensure that members are treated in a consistent and fair manner, the application of consequences for conduct that is not in keeping with the department's expectations will be based upon a balanced consideration of factors. Following the careful consideration of all applicable factors in any disciplinary review, every effort will be made to determine the consequences that consistently and fairly fit each specific incident.

DISCIPLINE FACTORS

Employee Motivation

The department exists to serve the public. One factor in examining a member's conduct will be whether or not the member was acting in the public's interest. A member who violates a policy or procedure in an effort to accomplish a legitimate police purpose, and who demonstrates an understanding of the broader public interest inherent in the situation, will be given more positive consideration in the determination of consequences than one who was motivated by personal interest. From time to time it may be difficult to distinguish between public and personal interest. As an example, arresting a dangerous criminal is in the public's interest. However, violating the criminal's Constitutional rights in order to do so is not in the public's interest. The greater public interest is for the police to carry out its responsibilities while protecting the public's Constitutional guarantees. But if a member attempts to devise an innovative, nontraditional solution for a persistent crime or service problem and unintentionally runs afoul of minor procedures, the desire to encourage creativity may carry significant weight in determining any discipline that might result.

Degree of Harm

The degree of harm that an error causes is also an important aspect in deciding the consequences of a member's conduct. Harm can be measured in a variety of ways. It can be measured in terms of the monetary cost to the department and community. For example, an error that causes significant damage to a vehicle could be examined in light of the repair costs. Harm can also be measured in terms of the personal injury the error causes, such as the consequences of an unnecessary use of force. Another way in which harm can be measured is the impact of the error on public confidence. An employee who engages in criminal conduct could affect the public confidence in the department if the consequences do not send a clear, compelling message that the conduct will not be tolerated.

Employee Experience

The level of experience of department members is a discipline factor. A relatively new member (or an experienced member in an unfamiliar assignment) will be given greater consideration when judgment errors are made. Conversely, a member who makes a judgment error that would not be expected of one who has a significant amount of experience may expect more serious sanctions.

Intentional and Unintentional Errors

Errors can be classified as intentional or unintentional. An unintentional error is an action or decision that turns out to be wrong, but based upon the information available at the time it was taken, seemed to be in compliance with policy and the most appropriate course. Unintentional errors also include those momentary lapses of judgment or acts of carelessness that result in minimal harm. Department members will be held accountable for these errors but the consequences will be more corrective than punitive unless the same errors persist.

An intentional error is an action or a decision that an employee makes that is known (or should be known) to be in conflict with law, established training or procedures or this Code of Conduct. Generally, intentional errors will be treated more seriously and carry greater consequences than unintentional errors. Within the framework of intentional errors there are certain behaviors that are entirely inconsistent with the responsibilities of the police profession. These include lying, theft, physical abuse of citizens, and other equally serious breaches of the trust placed in members of the police profession. The nature of the police responsibility requires that police officers be truthful. It is recognized, however, that it is sometimes difficult to determine if one is being untruthful. A member will face discharge from the department when it is clear that the member is intentionally engaging in an effort to be untruthful. It is also a serious breach to have engaged in theft, physical abuse of citizens and other criminal behavior.

DISCIPLINARY MATRIX

The Chief of Police reserves the right of suspension, transfer of assignment and extension of probation, counseling, alcohol/drug assessment, psychiatric evaluation, fitness for duty evaluation, or any other training, treatment, or evaluation reasonably deemed necessary by the Chief of Police.

The disciplinary matrix categories may not be sequentially followed in cases where there may be a number of violations or in cases where there are particularly egregious circumstances. The matrix is considered a guideline only and it is within the Chief of Police's discretion to deviate from the matrix based on the individual case.
